Advertisement: In the official health care debate, a policy change counts as “losing coverage.” In reality, a policy change counts as “changing coverage.” By that definition, 13 million people who now get insurance through their employers and receive subsidies will lose coverage. What’s more, the Supreme Court ruling that allowed states to refuse to set up Obamacare exchanges is, by definition, a “policy change.” That’s why many of my friends and family in states that are refusing to set up exchanges are now “uninsured.”
