The cytoprotective effects of avocado polyphenols (APs) against tert-butylhydroperoxide (t-BHP) were examined in RAW 264.7 cells. Cells were incubated with various concentrations of APs for 24 h. The cells were then treated with t-BHP (0.2 mM) and incubated for 30 min, and the release of cytosolic lactate dehydrogenase (LDH) was measured. The results showed that the t-BHP treatment caused a significant increase in the LDH release from the cultured cells. Pretreatment with APs for 1 h followed by t-BHP significantly attenuated the release of LDH. The cells were also pretreated with APs for 1 h, and then incubated for 30 min with t-BHP. APs reduced the t-BHP-induced intracellular reactive oxygen species (ROS) level determined by the cell-permeant redox-sensitive fluorescent dye 2',7'-dichlorodihydrofluorescein diacetate. Pretreatment with APs attenuated t-BHP-induced mitochondrial ROS formation. APs increased the activities of the antioxidant enzymes, super 648931e174
