Modify Javascript PHP's script encoding for Php's MsSQL database My PHP application (due to character encoding) is unable to connect to a MsSQL database. I have solved this via the following steps: Add this line into the php.ini file (Windows) extension=php_bz2.dll Add this line to the php.ini file (Linux) extension=bz2.so Edit the database's connection string to use utf-8 (Windows)

Server=localhost;Database=DB_NAME;Uid=user;Pwd=password;Encoding=utf8; (Linux)
Server=localhost;Database=DB_NAME;Uid=user;Pwd=password;Encoding=utf8; Restart the server Add the line:
header('Content-type: text/html; charset=utf-8'); Am I missing any step? So far there is no error or warning showing on the PHP's cli. My Question How would I change the javascript code to use PHP's charset that I just modified?
JavaScript Code var newSql = 'SELECT * FROM table WHERE Id ='+ $("#id).val() + ';'; console.log(newSql); // Here I get the right newSql $.ajax({ type: "POST", url: "new.php", data: newSql, dataType: "json" });

Sigma's PWS-5000 is a network print server that houses four 10-port modem access cards. It is designed to provide direct access to the Internet for thousands of users. The PWS-5000 provides fax, printer, and modem services over two communication links. One link provides 10/100 and 10base-T RJ-45, and the other link provides asynchronous transmission mode (ATM) with x.25 encapsulation. The PWS-5000 unit can receive incoming faxes via modems from one of up to 32 telephony devices. The server supports long distance telephony and supports traffic shaping, echo cancelation, and gate keeping. The PWS-5000 can be configured to provide either one or two IP addresses. The PWS-5000 supports queueing and re-transmitting of print jobs and accepts programming at the hardware level. The PWS-5000 can be administered remotely and has a simple Web-based interface. For high-speed transmissions it supports TCP/IP, IPX, UDP, and UDP-IP at either 10/100 or 10/100/1000 speeds. Sigma's PWS-5000 network print server includes four printer access cards that support a total of 32 ports. The PWS-5000 is available in a 5U rack mount. The PWS-5000 is "flash based" and is powered over the Internet. The P
