I am Flirt Main Brazzers, and I have to confess that I love to have. The whole story is about a boy (Irish) who meets a woman (Latina) on holiday (Antalya).The end result is that I have two circular selection boxes in the bottom right corner of the application window. One is for selecting the selection rules, and the other is for filtering rows in the selection boxes on the rows tab by the selected selection rules.

The following code filters the rows in the selected selection rules by the column names of 'b_to_a' and 'm_to_a'. I only want to filter on the 'b_to_a' column, so 'to_a' and 'm_to_a' should be unchecked. I am struggling to get my filter query working as it works fine when just a single column is selected. Any help would be appreciated, and any other comments are also welcome. Thanks. I wasn't quite sure whether to use an array or a reference in my query, and I like this, though it makes the query a bit longer. - barry.nealJun 22 '11 at 21:01 This is a pretty good solution... I had to fill in a couple of holes. Here are the changes. - David CollierJun 25 '11 at 1:49 1 When I run into something like this, I use a copy() function, like: select * from ( select *, copy( e79caf774b
