yet, for a while, it seemed that no one was listening. the sex wars which raged in the 1970s and 1980s between hite and the misogynists had convinced most people that the role of sex was to help men dominate and control women. even betty friedan didnt believe that women had to do it through intercourse, she thought they should wait until they were married. a new generation of sex books for women are already emerging. but they are still with the humanistic psychology approach. and the first one to bring the two together for women has to be the remarkable shere hite. shere hite is an independent researcher as well as a sex educator. she was a sex researcher in the field of human sexuality, and also she became a sex educator. shere hite is a writer, therapist, educator, and researcher. she has a phd in theology and religious studies and a masters in social work. she has written over 50 books on women's sexuality, including the hite report and the hite encyclopedia, and the bestselling sex and the single girl. she has a new book out this month called it just is: learning to like your body. and she is currently finishing a book on the future of love. shes been working on this book for almost ten years. and i think it will be a landmark work in a field that is very important to women. its also just plain fun to read! i cant wait to start reading it. i hope you will too. theres a chapter in the book called the dilemma of desire, which is basically about how a partner is supposed to be so vulnerable that youre open to them, and theyre supposed to feel so vulnerable that they are open to you. theres not enough time to go into all of that, and it would take another book, but its about how a woman feels vulnerable when shes giving sex, and how a man feels vulnerable when she wants to give sex. in the book im saying, well, in fact, you dont have to feel vulnerable, you just have to be an open channel, but you can do it with someone else. its a bit like cross-training, but its about confidence rather than fitness.

So fellow students, please dont be affected by this mistake which will not repeat. Neither Nazism nor Islam are to be blamed nor the author. Or the administrator. Or that fool. Don't give way to ignorance. Read books, read true accounts, never let a bad book or media influence you. Know that what you believe in will dictate the course of your life and that is your right. Learn and dont give way to ignorance. Im an ex Muslim so I know about Islam so well, I think as human we are free to choose any religion we want regardless the historical background, Im aware of the strict rules in Islam and I wouldnt be and ex Muslim living freely in the down where all this rules apply. In my own opinion, I think Islam is designed for the old days and trying to force it on the morden wold without dropping some rules will be catastrophic. I have many Muslim friends and believe me, we all live together as one, there are good Muslims that already realise that all Islam laws cant just flourish days, they so not see you as treat anymore or hate you for living Islam. Muslims here are more tolerant and it shames them to hear news of terrorist in name of Islam. If you dig into the history of Islam and how it turns Violent then you will question if it really Gods will because is is after Jesus Christ and all those blood shed is suppose to be abdoned right after Jesus Gospels. But take a more good look; if Muslims forsake many of the laws, they will be living more as Christian. I believe God use whom he will for his work and you cannot lead the kind of muhamed (pbh) in the era. it what brews terrorism. : we are human first before religion and we should loose our humanity for the sake of a good that not even interested in bloodshed. live your life, be good chriatain or Muslim, no matter what religion you fix yourself, if you do bad you will surely be punnish in heaven.. 5ec8ef588b
