I recently added a new font to my Windows 10, and when I close and reopen VSCode, the new font is displayed (even though I only changed the font setting in VSCode settings itself, and did not install the font). I figured it may be a bug. However, I opened the Windows registry and found:
[HKEY_CURRENT_USER\Software\Microsoft\VSCode]
"fontFallback"="Symfonny"
"fontFallbackInitialized"=dword:00000001 Reading some related articles, I figured I should find the registry value "fontFallbackInitialized", and uncheck it, so I tried: Recreate the registry key in the registry (HKEY_CURRENT_USER\Software\Microsoft\VSCode), but it didn't do anything, as expected. Open the registry directly, and change the "fontFallback" and "fontFallbackInitialized" values from the text editor, but it didn't change the font in VSCode. Why is this happening? A: I had the same issue. I fixed this by Opening the Windows Registry Editor Navigating to: HKEY_CURRENT_USER\Software\Microsoft\VSCode Locating the new font setting: "fontFallback"="Symfony" And changing its value to: "fontFallback"="Courier New" Expected font fallback worked, but that didn't seem to have any effect on VSCode. However, once I restarted VSCode, it suddenly displayed the new font as expected. A: In my case, I had to set a registry value: "window.editor.fontFamily": "SFMono-Regular",

"window.editor 04aeff104c
